VINTAGE NOTES

The 2022 vintage started off with ideal weather throughout the spring and summer, leading into early September heat spikes. Temperature fluctuations and late-season rains split the harvest season in two, requiring precise picking decisions to be made throughout the valley. Extreme weather events and drought lead to a reduced crop size yielding more powerful, concentrated fruit with ample structure and intensity, while the more moderate early season was perfect for white and rosé varieties producing wines of elegance and focus. The 2022 vintage difficulties led to a uniquely premium vintage across the board.
